In June of 1953 a tornado tore through the town of Exeter. Most of the destruction was at the Exeter Country Club and the Jady Hill section of town. The damage due to the tornado was estimated at $100,000. The storm hit in the evening and the country club had several golfers including a women's league ready to tee off when the storm hit. Luckily, only four injuries were reported in the town.

The photos included in this menu are photos of the clubhouse after the fast moving and destructive storm.
